We live in demanding and dangerous times in the world of police leadership. While corporate America has learned that you either change or die in the private sector, the law enforcement profession and culture continues to evolve slowly. Our environment, human capital, technology, and external forces are different and oftentimes more volatile than they have ever been. It's time to come together and reassess the way we are managing and leading our law enforcement agencies today, and how we will lead them in the future. Designed for both Chief Executive Officers and Command Level personnel, "Re-Thinking The Police Management Paradigm" was developed with our industry's leading innovators, thinkers, and visionaries in mind.

TOPICS INCLUDE:

- Traditional paramilitary vs. contemporary corporate organizational models
- Profiles of America's leading CEOs
- Building the ultimate service culture
- Delivering world-class customer service
- Talent management in turbulent times
- Re-thinking police discipline
- Building an iconic brand
- Leading change in a change averse culture
- Quality assurance and business metrics
- The secret to ultimate success
